THE DETROIT VISITORS RETURN. The Story of the Pretty Young Lady

While the mysterious Detroit party—consisting of Mr. B. N. Smith, Mrs. M. Mc. Noah, and Miss Helen Chfford Tallier, whose trip to Gordonsville was reported in yesterday's Diseases—were in Richmond they visued several well-known business-houses, among them the First National Bank, in the effort to secure some knowledge of the alleged relatives of the young lady, who, she claimed, lived hear Gordonsville. No reason can be given for the conduct of the pretty young lady, who, it seems, was not engaged to Mr. Smith, as he had simply undertaken to bring her South, duly chaperoned, in order to make inquiry as to the kinspeaple and the fortune of $250,000 bequeathed to her, according to her statement, on the condition that she should marry a Mr. Elder, of Orange county, Va. by May 22, 1891. Mr. Randolph on the Hack Question. RICHMOND, VA., May 13, 1893. To the Editor of the Dispatch :

In reply to the article in to-day's paper on "High Hack Rates." I desire to say that I offered the resolution to dispense with all public backs and call on the public-sprined citizans to furnish the committee with a sufficient number of carriages to provide for our invited guests, and am sorry it did not pass. The resolution was fully justified by the facts. The secretary of the committee applied several days before to one of the largest firms in the city, who offered to furnish all the backs necessary at a very fair price, but on the day of the meeting said he must withdraw his offer for all but his own backs, as the liverymen had refused to supply theirs except at a high price, ranging from $8 to $13 cach. (The city ordinance allows but $3.50 for a funcial procession.)

For some months past reports have been in circulation that John W. Mackay, the California bonanza king, had advanced large sums of money to Mr. Bennett and that as security he had taken a mortgage on the plant of the Heraid. The loans, it is said, were advanced to cover losses in connection with the establishment of the Mackay-Bennett cable and losses sustained by Mr. Bennett's European editions of this paper in Paris and London. Mr. Bennett came over to this country last week, A few men are always ready to give their time and means to advance the material welfare of Richmond, to maintain her reputation for hospitality, and keep fresh the memories of her glorious east, but I cannot see why one class of her citizens should be allowed to extert twice and three times the price of hacks on such occasions as the one on May 31st or the unveiling of the Lee Monument, when, I am informed by a member of the Board of Aldermen they paid $20 for the Board of Aldermen they paid $20 for the Board of Aldermen they paid $20 for the macks used that day. What would be said of the hotels and street-cars should they raise their prices double on such public occasions? If I know the temper of our people an effort would be made to revoke the charter of the company that tried it. MISS KING'S BURIAL-PLACE. Progress is the order of the age. You must be able not only to do a thing well, but be able to do it better than it has ever been done before, and in no line probably has there been such developments in the last ten years as in art; and among the various departments classed under this head the greatest progress is probably visible in the splendid etchings, engravings, and photographs from the noted works of the oid European masters, and our art students are thus enabled to take a tour through Europe, the Louve, and the Vatican by spending an hour in a first-class art gallery such as Caalo's Academy or Fire Arts, on Broad street, where you can see a copy from the brush of almost any of the noted painters, besides many new and novel designs of moulding.

If in visiting you should carry a well-filled purse the chances are that its contents would be left there, so attractive is the place and so courteous its proprietor, who is the same to all, whether purchasers or otherwise, while the amount of information he can give in regard to any department is simply wonderful.
